RENO PHIL WELCOMES AUDIENCES BACK TO THE PIONEER CENTER WITH SEASON OPENING PERFORMANCE

Reno, Nev. (October 18, 2021)– This weekend, the Reno Phil will welcome audiences back to the Pioneer Center for the first time in 20 months. The season opening concerts of the Classix Series are Saturday, October 23 at 7:30 PM and Sunday, October 24 at 4:00 PM.

“We cannot wait to welcome each and every audience member to the Pioneer Center for the Performing Arts” said Tim Young, Reno Phil President and CEO. “We are so excited to make music together again.”

The concert, “Ravel’s Piano Concerto,” will feature piano soloist Joyce Yang performing Ravel’s Piano Concerto in G Minor with the Reno Phil Orchestra, led by Laura Jackson. Other works on the program include Gioacchino ROSSINI’s Italian in Algiers; Grażyna BACEWICZ Concerto for String Orchestra; and Pyotr Ilyich TCHAIKOVSKY Orchestral Suite No. 4, op. 61 Mozartiana.

The Reno Phil will require proof of full vaccination (or proof of a negative test) for all audience members, staff and artists at Reno Phil presented concerts at the Pioneer Center for the Performing Arts. The Reno Phil will also follow the guidelines of the Washoe County Health District, which currently requires masks to be worn indoors.

In addition to the in-person performances at the Pioneer Center, the Reno Phil will livestream each performance as well as offering a video recording of the concert (available October 27) for those patrons who aren’t quite ready to return to live events.

Tickets for the concert are available at renophil.com or by calling the Reno Phil Box Office at 775-323-6393.
